Kathy Buckley

Kathy Buckley (www.kathybuckley.com) is a five-time American Comedy Award Nominee as Best Standup Female Comedienne, and the winner of countless other awards for her work. Her television appearances include The Tonight Show, Good Morning America, CBS This Morning, The Today Show, Entertainment Tonight, Extra, Inside Edition and CNN.

Her poor performance in second grade landed her in a school for mentally and physically impaired children. It took school administrators, psychologists, and audiologists nearly a year to discover it was just a hearing loss and not a lack of mental acuity that was impeding her speech and language development. During her late teens, Kathy's life was interrupted when she was run over by a jeep while sunbathing on a beach. As a result she experienced intermitted paralysis in her legs. Her recovery took almost five years. Then, just six years later, she was diagnosed with cervical cancer. Undaunted, she has turned roadblocks into springboards, using her personal experience as launching pads for humor and education of others.

This is what people are saying about Kathy Buckley ----

“An Inspiration.” -- Colin Powell

“She has you crying one moment, the next you're laughing.”
– The Today Show

“What a story, what a lady! A tale of courage from a silent world. Mesmerizing and humbling.” -- Entertainment Tonight

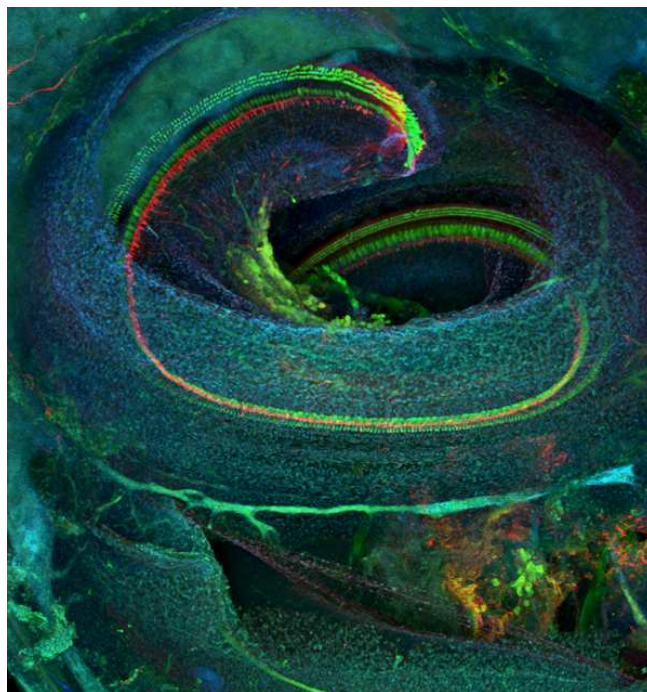

Dr. Edwin Rubel, Ph.D.

Dr. Rubel is part of the Virginia Merrill Bloedel Hearing Research Center at the University of Washington. The Bloedel team has dominated the world's literature on hair cell regeneration. Dr. Rubel was the first to discover hair cell regeneration in birds. Further research has confirmed that regeneration of inner ear structures in mammals (as well as birds) is possible.

UW researchers are now poised to take the next step in bringing this possibility closer to a practical treatment for the hundreds of millions of hearing impaired people worldwide.
